FLIP-THINKING – THE NEW BUZZ WORD SWEEPING THE US

A teacher is getting his pupils to do their homework during the day and watch his lectures on YouTube at night – turning standard practices on their head can also benefit business.

In today's classrooms many schoolchildren will see smartboards instead of chalkboards, and they'll turn in their assignments online rather than on paper. But the rhythm of their actual days will be much the same as when their parents and grandparents sat in those same seats back in the 20th century.

During class time, the teacher will stand at the front of the room and hold forth on the day's topic. Then, as the period ends, he or she will give students a clutch of work to do at home.

But one American teacher is taking a different approach. Karl Fisch, a teacher of algebra at a high school in Denver, Colorado, has flipped the sequence. He's recorded his lectures on video and uploaded them to YouTube for his students to watch at home. Then, in class, he works with students as they solve problems and experiment with the concepts. Lectures at home, "homework" in the classroom. Call it the Fisch Flip.

The Fisch Flip offers a lesson in innovation for organisations of every kind. Consider the publishing industry. It is typical for publishers to launch a book by issuing a pricey hardcover, and then, after a year or so, following it up with a less expensive paperback. Flipping the sequence, i.e. putting out a cheap paperback or even an e-book first makes a lot of sense. Readers are more likely to gamble on an unknown author if they can risk just a few pounds. Then, if the book sells well, the publisher could produce a hardcover edition at a much higher price.

Or imagine flipping the sequence in the movie business. Contrary to the current strategy, studios could first issue a low-price DVD to build an audience. If the film proved popular, the studio could then release it to the movie theatres.

Even the human resources department is a candidate for the Fisch Flip. For instance, employees often get a going-away party on their final day with an organisation. But one American software firm does the reverse: the company holds a welcome bash for new employees at 9am on their first day of work.

- 0) Flip-thinking is becoming a fashionable concept in the US.
- 1) Reversing accepted procedures can be useful outside schools as well.
- 2) Advanced technology in the classroom has changed students' lives completely.
- 3) Schoolchildren have more homework to do than their parents and grandparents did.
- 4) In Karl Fisch's algebra courses students don't need to prepare for the lessons.
- 5) In the publishing industry flipping could mean bringing out a cheap edition first.
- 6) Publishers struggle as fewer and fewer people can afford to buy books.
- 7) Studios now issue a DVD before they release a new film to the movie theatres.
- 8) The software firm referred to in the article gives a party on Monday mornings.

MINISKIRTS TO BE OUTLAWED IN ITALIAN RESORT

The mayor of Castellammare di Stabia, a southern Italian beach town, has ordered police officers to fine women who wear short miniskirts as part of a battle to raise what he describes as the level of public decorum. At a council meeting last night, Luigi Bobbio, the recently elected mayor, won a vote to ban clothing considered "very short" from the town. Police will have the power to hand out €300 fines to offenders.

Explaining what he meant by "very short", Bobbio said officers would target women wearing miniskirts that did not fully cover their underwear. He said he had faith in officers to make snap decisions. "They won't need to carry out checks up close," Bobbio told the Corriere del Mezzogiorno. "One glance will be enough to decide."

The new rules, which were approved by the town council yesterday, drew outrage from local opposition politicians, who mounted a sit-in outside the town hall. "The Bobbio administration is male chauvinist," the organisers of the protest said in a statement. "This town does need decorum, but not the decorum that is measured by a tape measure held against women's clothing."

"By equating women's clothing with urban decorum, this measure implies women are no more than benches or hedges," said councillor Angela Cortese. She said she was equally angered by a local priest, Don Paolo Cecere, who praised the move and claimed it could cut down on sexual harassment. "This turns the clock back years for women and undermines all our victories," she said.

The Italian consumer group Aduc added: "Is Castellammare di Stabia in the province of Naples? No, it's in the province of Teheran."

The miniskirt ban is one of 41 new decorum measures introduced by Bobbio. Swearing in public, kicking footballs in the street, lying on benches, climbing trees and walking a dog with a lead longer than two metres will also be targeted. Bobbio said people would not be allowed to wander off the beach in their swimming costume. "This is not Mallorca," he said.

V&A MUSEUM PLEADS FOR CASH TO SAVE CHARLES DICKENS'S MANUSCRIPTS

When Charles Dickens picked up his quill in 1859 to write the words, “It was the best of times, it was the worst of times,” (0) _____, he was setting down some of the most enduring opening lines in world literature. The novelist’s striking phrase helped to set the scene (16) _____ amid the turmoil of the French Revolution – but the paper on which he wrote A Tale of Two Cities might not endure for much longer (17) _____.

This weekend the Victoria and Albert Museum is launching a campaign to raise funds to conserve the original manuscripts of three of Dickens’s novels, including A Tale of Two Cities. Rescued from the novelist’s home (18) _____, the manuscripts came to the V&A in 1876 when Forster, a literary agent, bequeathed his library to the fledgling museum. The V&A now hopes to restore the priceless originals – which are still legible although blotched – (19) _____ of the bicentenary of Dickens’s birth in 2012.

Written on low-grade blue writing paper, the manuscripts were never “wonderful quality”, (20) _____, deputy keeper of word and image at the V&A. But they remain a crucial part of Britain’s cultural heritage. “It is an immense privilege to have them (21) _____,” he said. “We have managed to conserve our other Dickens manuscripts, some of which were (22) _____, but the money just ran out.”

Meriton suspects that if it hadn’t been for Dickens’s friend Forster, who edited newspapers as well as penning a two-volume Life of Charles Dickens in 1872 and 1874, the manuscripts would have been thrown (23) _____ or burned on the fire. ‘I don’t think Dickens would have kept them at all. He was not that interested.’

A Tale of Two Cities was published (24) _____ in Dickens’s literary periodical All the Year Round in 1839.

TWENTY CHICKENS FOR A SADDLE

Robyn Scott's memoirs of her African childhood

Robyn Scott was nearly seven when, in 1987, her parents upped sticks with her younger brother and sister, leaving the gentle green of New Zealand to return to the place they were raised – Selebi, 150km from the borders of South Africa and Zimbabwe on the eastern edge of Botswana. It was a move that would lead to 13 eccentric, broadly idyllic years that Scott describes in her book.

The Scotts converted a shaky cowshed next to the property of Robyn's paternal grandfather, improvising a new floor with varnished brown paper and trying to sidestep the snakes in the laundry.

Robyn's father, Keith, devoted his working day to remote bush clinics, where he might see 100 patients in a day, returning by car or plane red-eyed, exhausted and full of curious tales. Her mother, Linda, insisted on home schooling and wholewheat bread, and filled their days with an array of adventures and botanical expeditions.

The three children sucked it up – growing sensible, upright and untroubled by convention, continuously engaged and endlessly thrilled. Robyn's first youthful commercial exercise was to rescue 20 battery chickens from destruction, producing a free-range egg business whose profits went part-way towards a new saddle for her wild pony. Both she and her sister chose to be vegetarians. They nurtured a vivarium of snakes and cared for just about any animal that presented itself, endlessly rescuing flailing insects from their back-yard pool.

But Keith dreamed of owning a freehold farm in Botswana and returning it to its original beauty, so the family moved on from Selebi after five years to a 2,000-acre farm in south-eastern Botswana. This was an intensely green, watery wonderland, with crocodiles, hippos and antelope, and teamed with bird life.

Molope Farm was thrilling – a “ferocious but fragile” paradise. Tighter schedules, tests and homework came as the children moved on to secondary schools across the borders in Zimbabwe and South Africa. And as the children became increasingly independent, their parents were ever more caught up with their own campaigns – Keith with Aids awareness and alternative therapies; Linda with her nutritional studies and books.

Twenty Chickens for a Saddle is such a bravura performance that it is difficult to believe it is Robyn Scott's first book. It is a confident portrait of a rollicking family that championed laughter and independence of thought and action at every turn.

TEA

Perhaps the most famous legend surrounding the (0) _____ of tea is the Chinese story of Shen Nung, the emperor and renowned herbalist.

He was (1) _____ his drinking water when leaves from a nearby tea shrub blew into the pot. He tasted the (2) _____ brew and the beverage of tea was born in 2737 B.C.

Tea arrived (3) _____ Europe at the beginning of the 17th century via Dutch and Portuguese sailors, who had trade (4) _____ with China. It soon became a fashionable drink for the (5) _____ in continental Western Europe. But Britain, always a little suspicious of continental trends, lagged (6) _____. It was the marriage of Charles II to Catherine of Braganza in 1662 (7) _____ proved to be a turning point. She was a Portuguese princess, and a tea (8) _____ , and her love of the drink established tea (9) _____ a fashionable beverage at court and among rich people.

At the beginning of the 18th century, tea became a common product enjoyed by (10) _____ sectors of the population in Europe.

Task 2

- You are going to read an article about Mr Aydin Onac, the head of an English grammar school, who ate a tarantula. Some words are missing from the text.
- Your task is to write the missing words on the dotted lines (11-18) after the text.
- Use only one word in each gap.
- There is an example (0) at the beginning.

HEAD TEACHER SHOCKS PUPILS

BY EATING SPIDER

A head teacher in Orpington, Kent stunned pupils at his school (0) _____ eating a tarantula in front of a packed assembly. (11) _____ some of his pupils delighted at seeing his discomfort during the ordeal, others (12) _____ said to be upset, and at least one parent complained that it set a bad example to youngsters.

Mr Onac said he came (13) _____ with the idea of eating a poisonous spider as a way of raising sponsorship money for a new sports and drama complex.

He explained: “It wasn’t (14) _____ I opened the container and saw how big it was that I started to feel very nervous. As I was eating it I was wondering (15) _____ I would still be alive by break-time. It tasted quite salty, and a little bit like burnt chicken.”

The spider was sourced from Cambodia, (16) _____ they are farmed and eaten by locals as a delicacy. They are usually deep fried and the cooking process negates the effects of any toxins they carry.

A member of the teaching staff said they were full of admiration for Mr Onac’s actions. But not everybody connected with the school (17) _____ in agreement. One parent said: “It’s all very well raising money, but why does he (18) _____ to behave as if he’s taking part in a TV show?”

Task 3

- You are going to read an article about a bird that steals food by imitating the calls of other animals. Some words are missing from the text.

- Write the letter of the appropriate answer in the white box.
- There is one example (0) at the beginning.

BIRD-MIMICS STEAL MEERKATS' FOOD

meerkat

Drongos in the Kalahari Desert mimic the alarm calls of other species in (0) _____ to steal food, scientists have found.

The birds "play tricks" (19) _____ meerkats in particular, following the little mammals around until they (20) _____ catch a meal. The drongos then make fake alarm calls and cause the meerkats (21) _____ for cover, allowing the drongos to swoop in.

The scientists (22) _____ their work studying meerkats and noticed their reaction to the drongos' alarm calls. When a predator was in the area, the birds made an alarm call and the meerkats immediately dashed for cover. But when the drongos saw a meerkat with a large food item such as a gecko or a scorpion, they made a false alarm call (23) _____ sounded the same as the calls they made at predators, (24) _____ there were no predators around.

The researchers then turned their attention to the drongos. To avoid (25) _____ ignored, the birds appear to deliberately change the type of call they make - to alter the species they mimic - when meerkats stop (26) _____ to their alarm calls.

Although (27) _____ species they impersonated were other birds, drongos even managed a meerkat alarm call. The birds may have learned by trial and error that meerkats are (28) _____ to find their own alarm call "particularly convincing". This is one of the first studies to show that vocal mimickry can have a function.

Task 4

- You are going to read two anecdotes about Ferenc Molnár, the famous Hungarian playwright and novelist. In most lines there is one word that should not be there. It is either grammatically incorrect or does not fit in with the sense of the text.
- Read the text and then copy the extra word in the space provided after each line.
- Some lines are correct. Indicate these lines with a tick (✓).
- The task begins with two examples (0).

TWO ANECDOTES

0) While Molnár was living in a hotel in Vienna during the 1920s, a
 0) large contingent of his family relatives came to see him in the hope
 29) of sharing with some of the fruits of the playwright's fabulous
 30) success. They were not prepared for a hostile reception, but to their
 31) surprise Molnár greeted them kindly, even though insisting that
 32) they all sit for a group portrait to mark the occasion. When the print
 33) was ready, Molnár had handed it over to the hotel doorman, saying:
 34) "Whenever you will see any of the persons in the picture trying to
 35) get into the hotel, don't let them to come in."
 36) Molnár was a late riser, while never emerging until 1:00 p.m. On
 37) one occasion in Budapest, having called as a witness in a lawsuit,
 38) he had better to present himself at court by 9:00 a.m. The combined
 39) efforts of his servants got him out of the bed and dressed, and they
 40) propelled him out of the house at 8:30 into the rush-hour crowd.
 41) Molnár looked in an amazement at the hurrying workers and
 42) exclaimed, "Good heavens, who are all these people witnesses in this fool case?"

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After another short silent period we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.

Task A

You are going to study in North Carolina for a year and you would like to do some charity work while you are there. Your American friend Josh has sent you a list of the activities you could do in the area:

Primary Care Solutions Community Base

Charlotte, NC 28212

Homeless Shelters

Most homeless shelters welcome volunteers and have a variety of programs through which you can get involved. You might help prepare or distribute meals, work behind the scenes in the office, help organize a food drive to stock the pantry, etc.

Helping Others Learn to Read

Reading is one of the most important skills an adult can have. Many adults, however, have never learned how to read. Literacy volunteers act as tutors who help illiterate children and adults learn this important skill.

Website Creation

Many small charities and organizations do not yet have web sites. You can help by volunteering your services. You could also raise money to pay for the web site, or seek help from a local company in the form of a donation.

(<http://www.impactonline.org/>)

Write a letter of 120-150 words to Josh in which you:

- decide which of the activities you think you could do best and why,
- say how you think you would benefit from the experience,
- tell him about at least two practical questions you would need more details about.

Begin your letter like this:

Hello, Josh,

Task B

You have read about the following problem on the internet forum called Teen Advice:

I've always been a fairly nice person, I even do some charity work. However, I have a very laid back personality, which makes some people think I am apathetic and arrogant.

In my class there's a girl who used to be a good friend and was involved in a serious car accident and still has to see a psychologist regularly. When she came back to school we were asked to be nice to her. Normally, I can do that, but now that I've been asked I feel I'm a fake. I don't want to hurt her but I've got no idea how to behave so I'm beginning to avoid her, which I know is awful. What shall I do?

Steve 17

(<http://www.teenhut.net/>)

Write a message of 200-250 words to Steve in which you include the following:

- what you think somebody in the girl's situation needs,
- how you think Steve should behave,
- how you or your friends coped in a similar situation.

Begin your message like this:

Hello, Steve,
